Statistics Show the City's Postal Business to Be Second in America. The report of the commission appointed last the greater part of the time that is to be devoted to talking. Yesterday's speeches on the Bepublican side were calculated to arouse the Democratic managers of the bill, and were in some instances as tantalizing as apeaches could well be under the rules of the Senate, but they were only partially successful in provoking Democrats to a response. They express themselves privately as determined to adhere to this policy and only to explain the provisions of the bill when satisfied that questions are asked in good faith, and not for the purpose of delay. It was noticeable that the Democrats, with the exception of Senator Mills, stood by the committee recommendations on all votes. Senators Hill and irby, concerning whose position there has been speculation, were absent, but Senator Murphy, whose position has been considered somewhat doubtful, stood with his party. The report of the commission are reported to the report of the react was made public resterday. The report gives in detail the boundaries of the proposed new been considered somewhat doubtes.

In party.

This practically solid vote on the Democratic side has given the Republicans no fittle concern, as they have been hopeful of creating diversion among the Democratis.

Some of them predict that the cohesion so far displayed will not continue, but the best information obtainable at this time indicates that, however unsatisfactory the bill is to a number of the Democrats, it will continue for the present at least to receive the voting support of all the Democratic Schators with possibly one or two exceptions. postal stations, each of which is to be conducted on the plan of an independent office, subordinate, however, to the Chicago main office. The establishment of ten substations and one hundred stamp agencies within the city is recom-mended. The report calls attention to the imrfect ventilation and horrible sanitary condition of the basement of the government building in which the post office is located. In the basein which the post office is located. In the base-ment is handled all the second, third and fourth diass mail matter dispatches from the Chicago post office, necessitating the employment of a sarge number of clerks day and night. The total receipts of the office on postal ac-count for the current fiscal year is estimated at exceeding $5,009,000, making the office the sec-ond in America. It is stated to be absolutely necessary that better and more commodious necessary that belief and moderates be secured.

Falling in this, it is urged that arrangements be made by which the ventilation and sanitary condition for the present quarters may be improved, which can best be done by a system of ventilating fans and a liberal use of proper disventilating annual in the second of the property of the report deals at length with the location and condition of stations, and provides for changes of site and the securing of more room in a number of these, the general aim being to group them along transportation lines. Recommendation is made that the time of departure of carriers from stations for the last deflivery be delayed until 2.3. - 7.30 p. m.; that changes be made in the delivery of registered matter, so as to expedite delivery of more than one-half of this mail, and that forty-seven additional carriers for Chicago be allowed by the department.

one-half of this mail, and that forty of the additional carriers for Chicago be allowed by the department.

The collection service for the territory outside of the central district is declared to be unsatisfactory. The principal objection urged against the delivery system of the Chicago office is the slow transmission of local mail between divisions of the city. The commission finds that probably its most important duty is to provide for a more rapid interchange of local mails. With a view to obtaining data from which to formulate a plan to remedy this defect an accurate account was taken of the number of pieces of first-class matter collection on the first three collections for April 20 and 21, 1894, which showed that the total number of pieces collected was 65,725, of which 25,382, or about 40 per cent., were local letters Of the latter about 10,000, or 40 per cent., were directed to persons within the contral office delivery. It was developed that the bringing of these collections into the central office caused a delay of from two to eighteen hours in the delivery of all local mail for stations.

All society was agreed upon one point-that for me there were but two suitable flances, my cousin Gentran, the Duke de Lannis, and the Duke de Courtalin.

I saw him-at the ball of the De Fresnes. He did me the honor to dance three times with me, and I went home absolutely intoxicated with joy. But the joy was of short the next day he said to his brother, who told his satur, who tone me; seems that a am to marry my consider Marceline. Last evening I was literally thrown into her arms. Out of pure goodness of soul I took pity on the poor little school girl and danced with her three times. But there must be no more of it. I have not yet had enough of life. Besides, I know of othing more ridiculous than marriage beat was not all. He also said to Robfor the first time, and she is so thin." TANTALIZING WITH TALK, by the Democratic compromise committee wherever they increase the duties and change was under discussion by the Republican advisory committee and that white a majority of these present counseled this course, the decision was not unanimous. It is one of the questions which will be discussed at the Republicaneaucus which is to be held on Monday night. Among other matters which probably will also receive attention at the hands of the caucus is that of the policy to be pursued in debating the tariff bill. There are some Republican Senators who hold that if the Republicans are to pursue the policy of aiding the Democrats in perfecting the bill by voting for the amendments it is useless to prolong the debate and extend the session merely to have the bill pass in the end in the shape the Democrats desire it, as expressed in their caucus.

The proceedings of the Senate yesterday have served to emphasize the intention of the Repubtheir caucus.

The proceedings of the Senate yesterday have served to emphasize the intention of the Republican Senators to exploit every phase of the questions presented in every paragraph, and of the Democrats to permit the Republicans to consume the greater part of the time that is to be devoted to talking.

shares, and in only two stocks, Sugar and Chicago Gas, did the sales exceed 10,000 shares St. Paul and General Electric made some appearance in the dealings, but the rest of the list was sadly neglected. It seemed as if the speculative fraternity at large had taken a breathing speil, awaiting some developments on which to operate, leaving it to the room traders to keep up a semblance of a market. It was expected that the gold engagements for Saturday would reach $2,00,000, and they did come within a hundred thousand dollars of that figure. This incident had not therefore any effect on the speculation, all of the gold withdrawn for expert came from the United States subtreasury.

Mamma tried to make me listen to reason. If I refused bim I threw away a splendid chance. The Duke de Courtalin was the mark at which all the maternal guns were pointed—great name, great position, great fortune. For me, I had but one word to oppose to all those just and proper remarks—Gontran! Gontran! Gontran or the convent, and the most severe convent at that, Carmel.

M. de Courtain was perfection. I listened to his praises all the afternoon and hated him. The more he was culogized the more I turned from him. With Gontran I could be quite at my ease, for he never impressed one with his superiority. I knew but little, but my ignorance compared with his was erudition.

haustible patience. Mamma was invariably engaged with Mme. de Courtalin.

At last the 17th day of May arrived. It was tacitly understood that upon that evening I would say yes to the patient lover, and the engagement would be formally announced before all the world. I was restless all day, and glad when II o'clock in the evening found mamma and me at the home of Mme de Vernieux, who was given a great ball.

As I entered I became suddenly awars that I was the center of attaction. A line had formed itself on either side, and little obsi of surprise and absi of admiration went deep into my heart.

M de Courtalin came up to us. He wanted to ask my hand for all the waltzes, for all the quadrilles, for all the evening, for all my life.

I answered: "Later on; presently; I feel

Then it became a race between the two men

We danced gayly, wildly, furiously. What a waitz. He said to me, "I love you. I love you! You are grace and beauty itself. There is not another women here half so lovely! And it is I who shall marry you! Do you hear? I, and none other!"

"Ah,my dear, if you had not come to-night, my engagement to M. de Courtain would have been officially announced to-morrow." have been officially announced to-morrow."

"Yes, but I have come and I am here holding you fast. I have discovered that there is not another women like you. I love you!"

"Slower, slower, I pray you. I am falling; everything is turning around. Stop."

"No, no, we shall not stop, If we stop your mother will stop us; and I have more to say to you, much more. Swear that you will be my wife."

"Yes, I swear it. But enough—enough"—

He held me so tightly and his face was pressed so close to my face, his lips so close to mine, that I grow suddenly faint and sipped down into his arms.

The next day our engagement was announced. The waitz had created a scandal, It was imperative.—Milwankee sentinel.

That winter of my first season mamma took no to a dozen great affairs; but they were oc-asions of mourning and sorrow, for Gontran I answered: "Later on; presently; I feel fatigued."

My eyes roamed listicasly over the ballroom; and perceived, with a start, two other eyes, fixed, settled upon me—two eyes that I knew well, but found it difficult to recognize, so big had they grown in that concentrated, wondering look.

Suddenly the owner arose and turned toward me. A glance aside showed me Courtallin slowly and laborfously making his way toward me from another corner. My cousin looked at the same time and saw him. shall marry de Courtalin."

How many times between that and the 17th of May did I repeat the operation. It came to be a settled thing that no sooner did mamma see me appear than she mechanically opened her arms to receive her daughter, crying, "Yes, I will marry Courtalin," and soon after, "No, I will not!" But the "I will not!" became more and more rare.

M. de Courtalin was a model of tact, of kindness and of resignation. He waited, always in black, always buttoned, with inexmy ignorance compared with his was erudition.

Mme, de Courtalin had called to ask my hand for her faultiess son. I do not know what mamma said to her after my refusal. I only know that I was left for a while in peace.

And where was Gontran through the long 8ummer? Making a tour of the world very quietly and quite at his ease.

I learned afterward this, also, was mamma's doing; that when he was in Japan he has doing; that when he was in Japan he has bought me a number of lovely little thingd, was not there.

He did not want to marry. He even told me so. I did not know then that this was by order of my mother.

One day about 4 o'clock in the afternoon—it was the second day of June—mamma came into my room with a look on her face that was new to me. "My child," she said, "my child."

She had no need to say more. I under-
